Getting Started with Consumer and Community Involvement in Research

Are you interested in consumer and community involvement in health and medical research but not sure where to start?

At this free webinar, the Tasmanian Collaboration for Health Improvement's, Consumer and Community Involvement Coordinator will cover the basics of consumer and community involvement in research. Plus, hear from a research team which is putting consumer and community involvement into practice in rural Tasmania.

This online seminar will cover:

- The fundamentals of consumer and community involvement.
- Different levels of involvement and research roles.
- UTAS researcher, Nicola Gadd, community member Celia Ralston, and lived experience advocate, Sally Kriel, will talk about consumer and community involvement on a Tasmanian Bowel Cancer research project.
